

Anglais

Nouveau : pour la session 2018, la durée de l'épreuve sera de 45 mn (Partie 1 : 30 questions, Partie 2 : 10 questions). Les textes et le nombre de questions seront adaptés à cette durée.

Descriptif de l'épreuve

L'épreuve d'Anglais a pour objectif d'évaluer le niveau de grammaire, de vocabulaire et d'orthographe du candidat, ainsi que son aptitude à la compréhension de la langue écrite.

L'épreuve comporte 2 parties :

1^{re} partie : grammaire et vocabulaire (30 questions)

Dans cette partie, le candidat doit montrer sa richesse dans la langue à travers ses connaissances linguistiques.

2^e partie : 2 textes de compréhension écrite (10 questions)

Cette partie comporte 2 textes extraits d'articles de presse portant sur l'actualité internationale, des faits de société, des analyses d'événements.

L'évaluation de la compréhension de la langue écrite porte aussi bien sur le sens explicite du texte que sur sa signification profonde ou implicite.

Conseils

- Pour bien préparer la première partie de cette épreuve, il faut bien connaître sa grammaire.

Les points suivants peuvent être testés : tous les temps et aspects (formes et usages), les verbes modaux, les formes passives et conditionnelles, les formes interrogatives et négatives, le fonctionnement des adjectifs, adverbes, prépositions, noms (pluriels, composés) et pronoms, les articles, les verbes irréguliers, réguliers et ceux à particule, les mots de liaison et articulateurs logiques entre deux phrases ainsi que toutes les fonctions (comment suggérer, comparer, conseiller, donner son avis, etc.).

Vous pouvez également être testé sur les nombreux « faux amis » existants entre le français et l'anglais.

Vous n'avez que 45 minutes pour toute l'épreuve ; il est donc conseillé de ne passer que 25 minutes sur la partie grammaire. Vous avez ainsi moins d'une minute par question et bien connaître sa grammaire devient un réel avantage.

- Pour la deuxième partie, il faut développer une méthode de lecture efficace car vous ne disposez que de 10 minutes par texte.

Il est conseillé de commencer par lire les questions et ensuite de lire très rapidement le texte pour identifier les sections utiles. Il faut ensuite lire attentivement les sections où se trouvent les réponses afin de déterminer rapidement quelles phrases sont vraies selon le texte.

Il est évident que plus vous lisez d'articles de presse, plus vous écoutez la radio ou les bulletins d'informations en anglais, plus l'accès à ce type de lexique sera facile et, de ce fait, la compréhension des textes rapide.

PART II : READING COMPREHENSION

France's 100 year-old AZERTY keyboard – the equivalent of the English-language QWERTY – is to be reconfigured after the government ruled that it encourages bad writing.

The AZERTY set-up has infuriated generations of writers, because of labour-creating peculiarities like the need for two strokes to make full-stops and numerals. But official ire is directed less at such inconveniences, and more at certain quirks and oversights which, it says, make it hard to construct proper French. “Today it is practically impossible to write French correctly using a keyboard that has been bought in France,” the ministry intones. “More surprisingly, certain European countries like Germany and Spain respect French writing better than the French are able to – because their keyboards permit it!”

Paris-based consultancy AFNOR to draw up a list of recommendations by the summer. The aim is to produce a new standard keyboard that will gradually replace the many varieties of AZERTY currently on the market.

AZERTY was introduced as a French adaptation of the original QWERTY keyboard on US typewriters at the start of the 20th Century. The main problem identified by the culture ministry is the difficulty for French writers to use “certain accented characters – and especially in upper-case”. Some common lower-case accented letters – like é (e-acute) and è (e-grave) – have dedicated keys on AZERTY. The letter ù (u-grave) also has its own key, even though it is used in only one word in the entire French language – où, meaning where. But other accented letters are harder to compose. And accented capital letters require manoeuvres of which, according to the ministry, most people are unaware.

This ignorance, and the consequent growing disuse of accented capitals, has given rise to the widespread belief that good French does not need them. Most people think that ignoring an accent on a capital letter is acceptable. Not so! says the culture ministry, pointing out that both the Academie Francaise and the National Print have issued guidelines urging the use of accents on capitals.

One thing the recommendations are unlikely to change is the AZERTY configuration itself – this despite the fact that most agree it is ergonomically disastrous.

No-one knows who first devised AZERTY, but it took hold in the last decade of the 19th Century. It is a lightly modified version of the QWERTY keyboard which was patented in the US 20 years earlier. Over the years different analysts have pointed out that the lay-out makes little sense for French. The home-row (or middle letter-bar – the most accessible) contains too many uncommon letters ; and the left hand is over-used. Plus there is the nonsense of having to go into upper-case mode to write full-stops and numbers.

As early as 1907 an alternative arrangement was proposed (ZHJAY). Today some enthusiasts are pushing for another (BEPO). But writing habits are by now too deeply ingrained. Some changes are coming, but A-Z-E-R-t-Y is most likely here to stay.

India caste unrest : 'Ten million without water' in Delhi

More than 10 million people in India's capital are without water despite the army regaining control of its key water source after protests, officials say.

On Friday, sixteen people were killed and hundreds hurt in three days of riots after the Munak canal, the city's main water source which supplies around three-fifths of water to Delhi's 16 million residents, was seized by Jat community protesters demanding more government jobs. Keshav Chandra, head of Delhi's water board, told the BBC it would take "three to four days" before normal supplies resumed to affected areas. Mr Chandra said that prior warnings meant that people had managed to save water, and tankers had been despatched to affected areas of the city, but that this would not be enough to make up for the shortfall.

Schools in the city were also closed after supplies from the canal were sabotaged during the protests leading to the army taking control of parts of the canal on Monday morning. However, repairs are expected to take time.

Protesters went on the rampage despite a curfew and the deployment of the army, which is reported to have opened fire on them in the districts of Rohtak and Jhajjar. Sanjoy Majumder said protesters had created road blocks "effectively encircling Delhi".

The land-owning Jat community is relatively affluent and has traditionally been seen as upper caste. They are mainly based in Haryana and seven other states in northern India. Comprising 27% of the voters in Haryana and dominating a third of the 90 state assembly seats, they are a politically influential community. Seven of the 10 chief ministers in Haryana have been Jats. They are currently listed as upper caste but the demonstrators have been demanding inclusion in caste quotas for jobs and education opportunities that have been available to lower castes since 1991.

In March 2014 the Congress-led national government said it would re-categorise Jats as Other Backward Castes (OBC), opening the way to government job quotas. But India's Supreme Court ruled in 2015 that the Jats were not a backward community. As jobs have dried up in the private sector and farming incomes have declined, the community has demanded the reinstatement of their backward caste status to enable them to secure government jobs.

Haryana state minister Ram Bilas Sharma said the situation was returning to normal, traffic had resumed on national highways and that railway lines between Delhi and the cities of Jaipur and Chandigarh had reopened.

India's federal government has said it will set up a top-level committee to look into the grievances of Jats. Mr Sharma also confirmed that the government would introduce a bill on reservations and quotas for the Jat community in the next assembly session, although he did not say when that would be.
